Training Partners Wins APJC Collaboration Award at Cisco Global Learning Partner Conference 2013

Singapore, 18 February 2013 – Training Partners today announced that it was conferred the Cisco APJC Collaboration Award. Cisco unveiled the winners of its 2012 Regional Learning Partner Awards at its Global Learning Partner Conference, 23 January 2013, in Cancun, Mexico.

The Cisco Learning Partner Awards are designed to recognise exemplary Learning Partners that demonstrate best-in-class business practices and serve as a model to the industry. Areas of consideration include collaboration with Cisco and other Learning Partners; innovation in developing new programs to enhance the student experience; acceleration of growth; and top quality, recognising an overall commitment to the highest-quality training and enablement.

“Training Partners is tremendously proud of this achievement. Recognition from such a respected industry player as Cisco underscores our commitment to continuously innovate, improve and deliver quality services that ensures the best learning experience and satisfaction for our students,” said Sarab Singh, Managing Director, Training Partners.

He added that the award marks a key milestone in Training Partner’s development as a provider of advanced technology training and training consulting services to multinational clients throughout the Asia Pacific.

“Cisco Learning Partners are an essential element of the Cisco channel strategy, providing best-in-class technical and business readiness authorised training and enablement that propels individuals to achieve successful careers, and their employers to boost profitable sales growth,” said Andres Sintes, senior director, Worldwide Learning Partner Channel for Cisco. “With this recognition, Training Partner further demonstrates its capabilities, as well as depth and breadth in Cisco’s technical architectures and business solutions, to deliver world-class innovative training and enablement.”
